WHICH IS OURS

The ocean liner the S.S. American set sail last spring in our auditorium for a four-night musical and comical galavant across the Atlantic. Reno Sweeny, the famous night club performer, boarded the liner with her back-up group, the Angels, only to find herself mixed up in a love triangle with the debonair Sir Evelyn Oakleigh and his fiancé, Hope Harcourt. Matters were further complicated when the American Public Enemy #13 Moonface Martin and his cohort Bonnie entangled themselves in a scheme with Billy Crocker, Hope's true love, to reunite the lovebirds. After much confusion, the situation was straightened out with the boys getting their girls.

Rousing reditions of old-time favorites like Blow Gabriel Blow were backed by our pit band, a group of people whose talents were very much appreciated. The cast was brightly decked in the costumes created by a hardworking crew of seamstresses. Stage Crew combined their constructive efforts with those of the Art Department to come up with a clever and very life-like set. With the help of the lightning crew the performances shone in many ways. Anything Goes was an effort made worthwhile by all those involved, audience included.

LET'S GO BLUE AND WHITE!

Weston fans, in high spirits from the pep rally, went to cheer on the football teams to their first home victories. This winning atmosphere prevailed throughout Blue and White week. Students transformed themselves into Hippies, Greasers, Grubbers and fashion plates. Towards the end of the week, Student Council put on a dance. Duke's rousing performance in the cafeteria was well received by their audience. School spirit was boosted and the year was off to a great start.

ICE CREAM DELIGHT

Love, like an Ice cream cone exciting, Fresh, tantalizing.
The love grows, the ice cream glistens
Still Sweet and Pure.
The love Fades, the ice cream melts
Leaving trickles of nectar on the human soul.

Michele Paolini

DISAPPOINTMENT

Mother, mother may I go play?
No, no, no you must stay
But mother please let me go out
If you don't listen, I'll have to shout!
But I'll be good, I won't be bad
Will you stop, your making me mad.

I don't care, I'm going out
Even if you're going to shout
I opened the door and I felt rain
All my efforts were in vain.

Vesna Hrvatin

SOMEONE BUT NO ONE

Apart from the world
No caring face
Fearful youth
Desperate for help.

Denied of loving friends
An empty universe
Tormented and lifeless
Longing for love.

No one helped
No one loved
No one came Someone died.

Pina Rigato

FAR AWAY LOVERS

From across the room
I see you sitting,
Alone, guilty and hurt.

I see your eyes
Which shine for me
With the love we once knew.

If you could only put down your mask,
And let me reach out to you
The love we shared
Could be once more.

From across the room
You see me sitting
Alone, guilty and hurt.

Do you see my eyes
Which shine for you
With the love we once knew.

I show no mask,
So reach out to me
And the love we shared
Could be once more.

Michele Paolili

THE TELEVISION

The television sits in the corner of the cabinet.
Waiting to be turned on.
With remote control it flicks on like a light bulb.
Now the show begins.
Movies, sports, soap operas, or maybe a talk show that always will provoke.
It has no say.
Like a slave to its master it's always committed.
But, like a flash the light goes off and the smoke rises and the glass breaks.
So you call the repair man and he says $50.00
you say Help!
And all that's left there is one ugly lump.

A BIG WIN

The equipments checked, the skates are tight
The Leafs are going to play tonight
The team is ready, rarin to go
Waiting to turn the ice to snow.

The puck is dropped, the fans are roaring
Hoping not to see a game that is boring
Quickly the Leafs control the play
And the puck is in Montreals end to stay.

Two periods have passed without a goal
But the injuries have taken a toll
The signs of a big fight were nearing
Hopefully there won't be a bench clearing.

Out of nowhere, the Leafs have scored
Making it one to nothing on the board
The clock runs fast, the time is up
The Leafs have won the Stanley Cup.

Robert Doucette

I wish I could do it all over again
The lights, the excitement and even the fame.

Waking up early with aching bones
Everyone tired, you could tell by the groans.

Four long months of working so hard
But then at the end, all of us "starred."

Day after day, night after night
Boy was it worth that long, long fight!

Hithceecoo step step, shane rock.
I'm sure they were sick of all that talk.

Waiting for stage time, we'd walk and roam.
Just one more time and then we'll go home.

We never dreamed time was so near
The real big night finally here.

With sweaty palms and worried faces
And dancers kneeling to do their laces.

We knew this was it, we had to go
One last check and "Do up your bow!"

With everyone ready to do their thing
We were actually out there starting to sing.

It went so quickly, we were finished so fast
All I remember now is a vision of the cast.

The crowd was smiling, we could hear their rear,
Our faces lit up and our tears began to pour.

We watched the suddenly stand
And one more time we heard the band.

I couldn't believe the fantastic sensation
We had just received a standing ovation!

Thank you for the memories,
Thank you for the shows,
And remembering Weston . . .
... ANYTHING GOES!

PARANOID

The vicious circle of eyes closed in, more and more,
and I was in the middle trapped at all sides, helplessness, alone, no one to reach out to, nothing to grasp.
And the eyes kept staring at me,
like I had turned into a horrid green monster,
an appalling sight that aroused their curiosity.
And I stood there for what seemed like eternity,
unable to utter a sound, or move a muscle.
The little confidence I had,
had dissolved in the heat of tension,
And now they were attacking the rest of me.
I tried to scream, but again, no sound came out,
I tried to run, but my legs seemed paralyzed,
as if someone had secretly nailed them to the floor, and a slight hint of perspiration formed on my forehead from my fear and strain.
My eyes, filled to the brim with tears,
came cascading down like a waterfall,
cooling the red hot furnace of my face,
But no!
I musn't let them do this to me, I told myself,
as I opened my eyes to find nobody there.

Barbara Rodinis

ELEPHANT MAN

His childhood was awful,
He was feared and tormented,
His face was dark, his weak looking cheeks indented,
shadows under his eyes,
his mouth turned down
and his nose, oh his nose,
it was huge and wide.
He was named Elephant Man.
As he sat on the stool Children would laugh, and say he was foolish,
A target for criticism,
a man without pity,
he looked upon the world,
as a life long chore,
His world was grey,
and never in bloom,
he wanted to die, or hide in a room.
As the rain poured down, pounding his hut,
He stepped out slowly into the mud.
As the rain poured down over his face,
With tears in his eyes, he let out a cry,
I'm a man not a beast!
Then some years later he slowly died.

SARAH

She's gone,
And I am left to tell you
her story.
Her name was Sarah,
Young and afraid
she would sit
by her bed
gazing out the window.
What was there?
What kept her attention?
As the days passed
She searched for something there.
Quiet and lonely,
Waiting and hoping,
'til one day her search ended,
She's gone.

Jennifer Hughes

THE NIGHT THE DEVIL PASSED THROUGH

It was a night in May
The day had gone fast
The wolves were at bay
It was the Devil that passed.

The town was still sleeping
Till early that morn.
Betty Lou was found weeping
Her curtains all torn.

The Devil had watched her
All through the night
He reached out to grab her
Her face had gone white.

It was ten years today
The devil passed through
They still remembered that day
And gone is Betty Lou.

Ken Nadin

LET ME GO!

In white linen sheets
A man lies waiting
Surrounded by the maze
Of life-givers
Feeding, pumping, breathing,
The thinking corpse of a man.

Waiting in painful silence
For justice to be done
They come!
Around the bed they do assemble
With grim and sadly faces
Imploring eyes filled with tears
Searching for revelation
And as the taker-giver
Leans across, the pain is gone
The eyes fill with exaltation
Then silence.

Carlo DiFelice

Even in the ghastly blaze of a sunset painted black a shaft of light is seen to flash from the bullet, in my back.

I slide and roll, onto the floor
my pencil hits the ground
my head fires back, my neck has cracked yet not one turns around.

Warnings of a future test
A chapter to be read
The teacher states,
in sentence-mid,
"Oh dear, he must be dead."

ALL ABOUT HER

You know that she has no mind of her own
From the time of her birth her brain has not grown
She can only copy her friends
And follow the latest fashion trends.

Her hair is brown or sometimes blond
Sometimes short and sometimes long
Her heels are high when she wants to feel tall
But never short because she doesn't want to be small.

You can see her here, and you can see her there
But if you see her, you'd better comb your hair
Because "you got to be neat," "you got to be clean" -
Or with her, you'll never be seen!

THE DESERT

Miles of sand, stretch west and east.
 The drought of the desert hounds like a beast.
 The juice in your mouth dries up and cakes.
 The blood in your veins boil and bakes.
 Your body grows weak, blistered and hot.
 A last speck of moisture is all you have got.
 You collapse in the sand, helpless and frail.
 The sand forming bars, just like a jail.
 The desert is a point of no escape.
 Where great plains of sand are drawn like a drape.

SUMMER RELATIONS

The summer school class that populates this room
 Has intelligence no more than jumping baboons.
 When our teacher errors mathematically
 They howl with glee and jump ecstatically.

If ever my genius prevails over this madness
 Suggesting to correct the teachers inexactness,
 With unmitigated fury they turn upon me:
 "We have no use for brilliant ingenuity!"

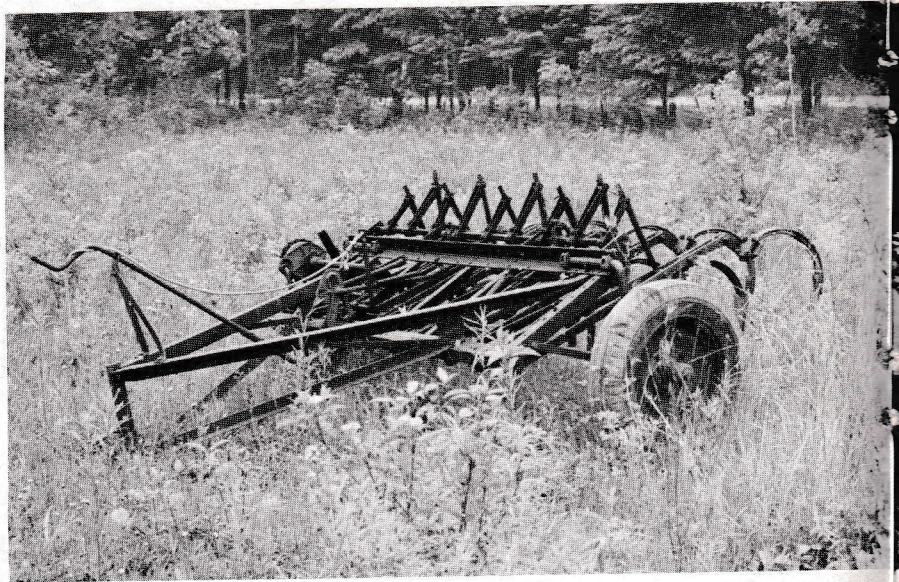

Like the typical Canadians they represent
 Their minds are hollow like the rooms air vent.
 Chained by stupidity they live their lives
 Unable to create, imagine, or devise.

"Ambition": a word foreign to their tongues;
 "Mediocrity!" instead bellows from their lungs.
 Like mindless automans they conform totally,
 Indistinguishable they are except physically.

Their goal is to guard their frail intellects
 From overexertion when a thought connects;
 And consciousness of the road they journey
 Overloads their minds - it's death instantly.

These walking shadows by myself are fated
 To stand, be counted, and exterminated!
 And be knocked off from this mortal coil,
 To the undiscovered country to boil in oil!

FROM TEILHARD'S WITH LOVE

It is a path

 and a final destination

PRESSED PETALS

An autumn flower, transplanted to a sheltered blissful sleep
My confidante, I see you
My dreams will always keep.

The shadow of an ageless love lies prostrate on the bed
A solumn promise trickles through
The tears of eyes stained red . . .

"Nous serons encore en amour dans l'hiver de mes rêves."

Stephen Kennedy

THE FOREST

Last years' leaves form a carpet
on the springy ground
The air is heavy with the fragrance of pine after a sun shower
A gentle breeze blows through the tall evergreens
The wild flowers are bursting with colour in the morning light
Small streams flow into a gurgling brook,
full of returning fish
A shimmer of sunlight is restored over the pond
The smell of mildewed air, is restored, and hangs over the old swamp
A lonely bird sings,
its solitary song in the tree tops.
The cunning bear searches for his breakfast of precious drops of honey in the bee infested hive.
The beginning of a new day.

Jane Silver

WINTER

The twilight descends over this desolate land,
Covered in Snow, like a sea of sand,
Damping the streets in inky black,
There is something missing, a strange lack.

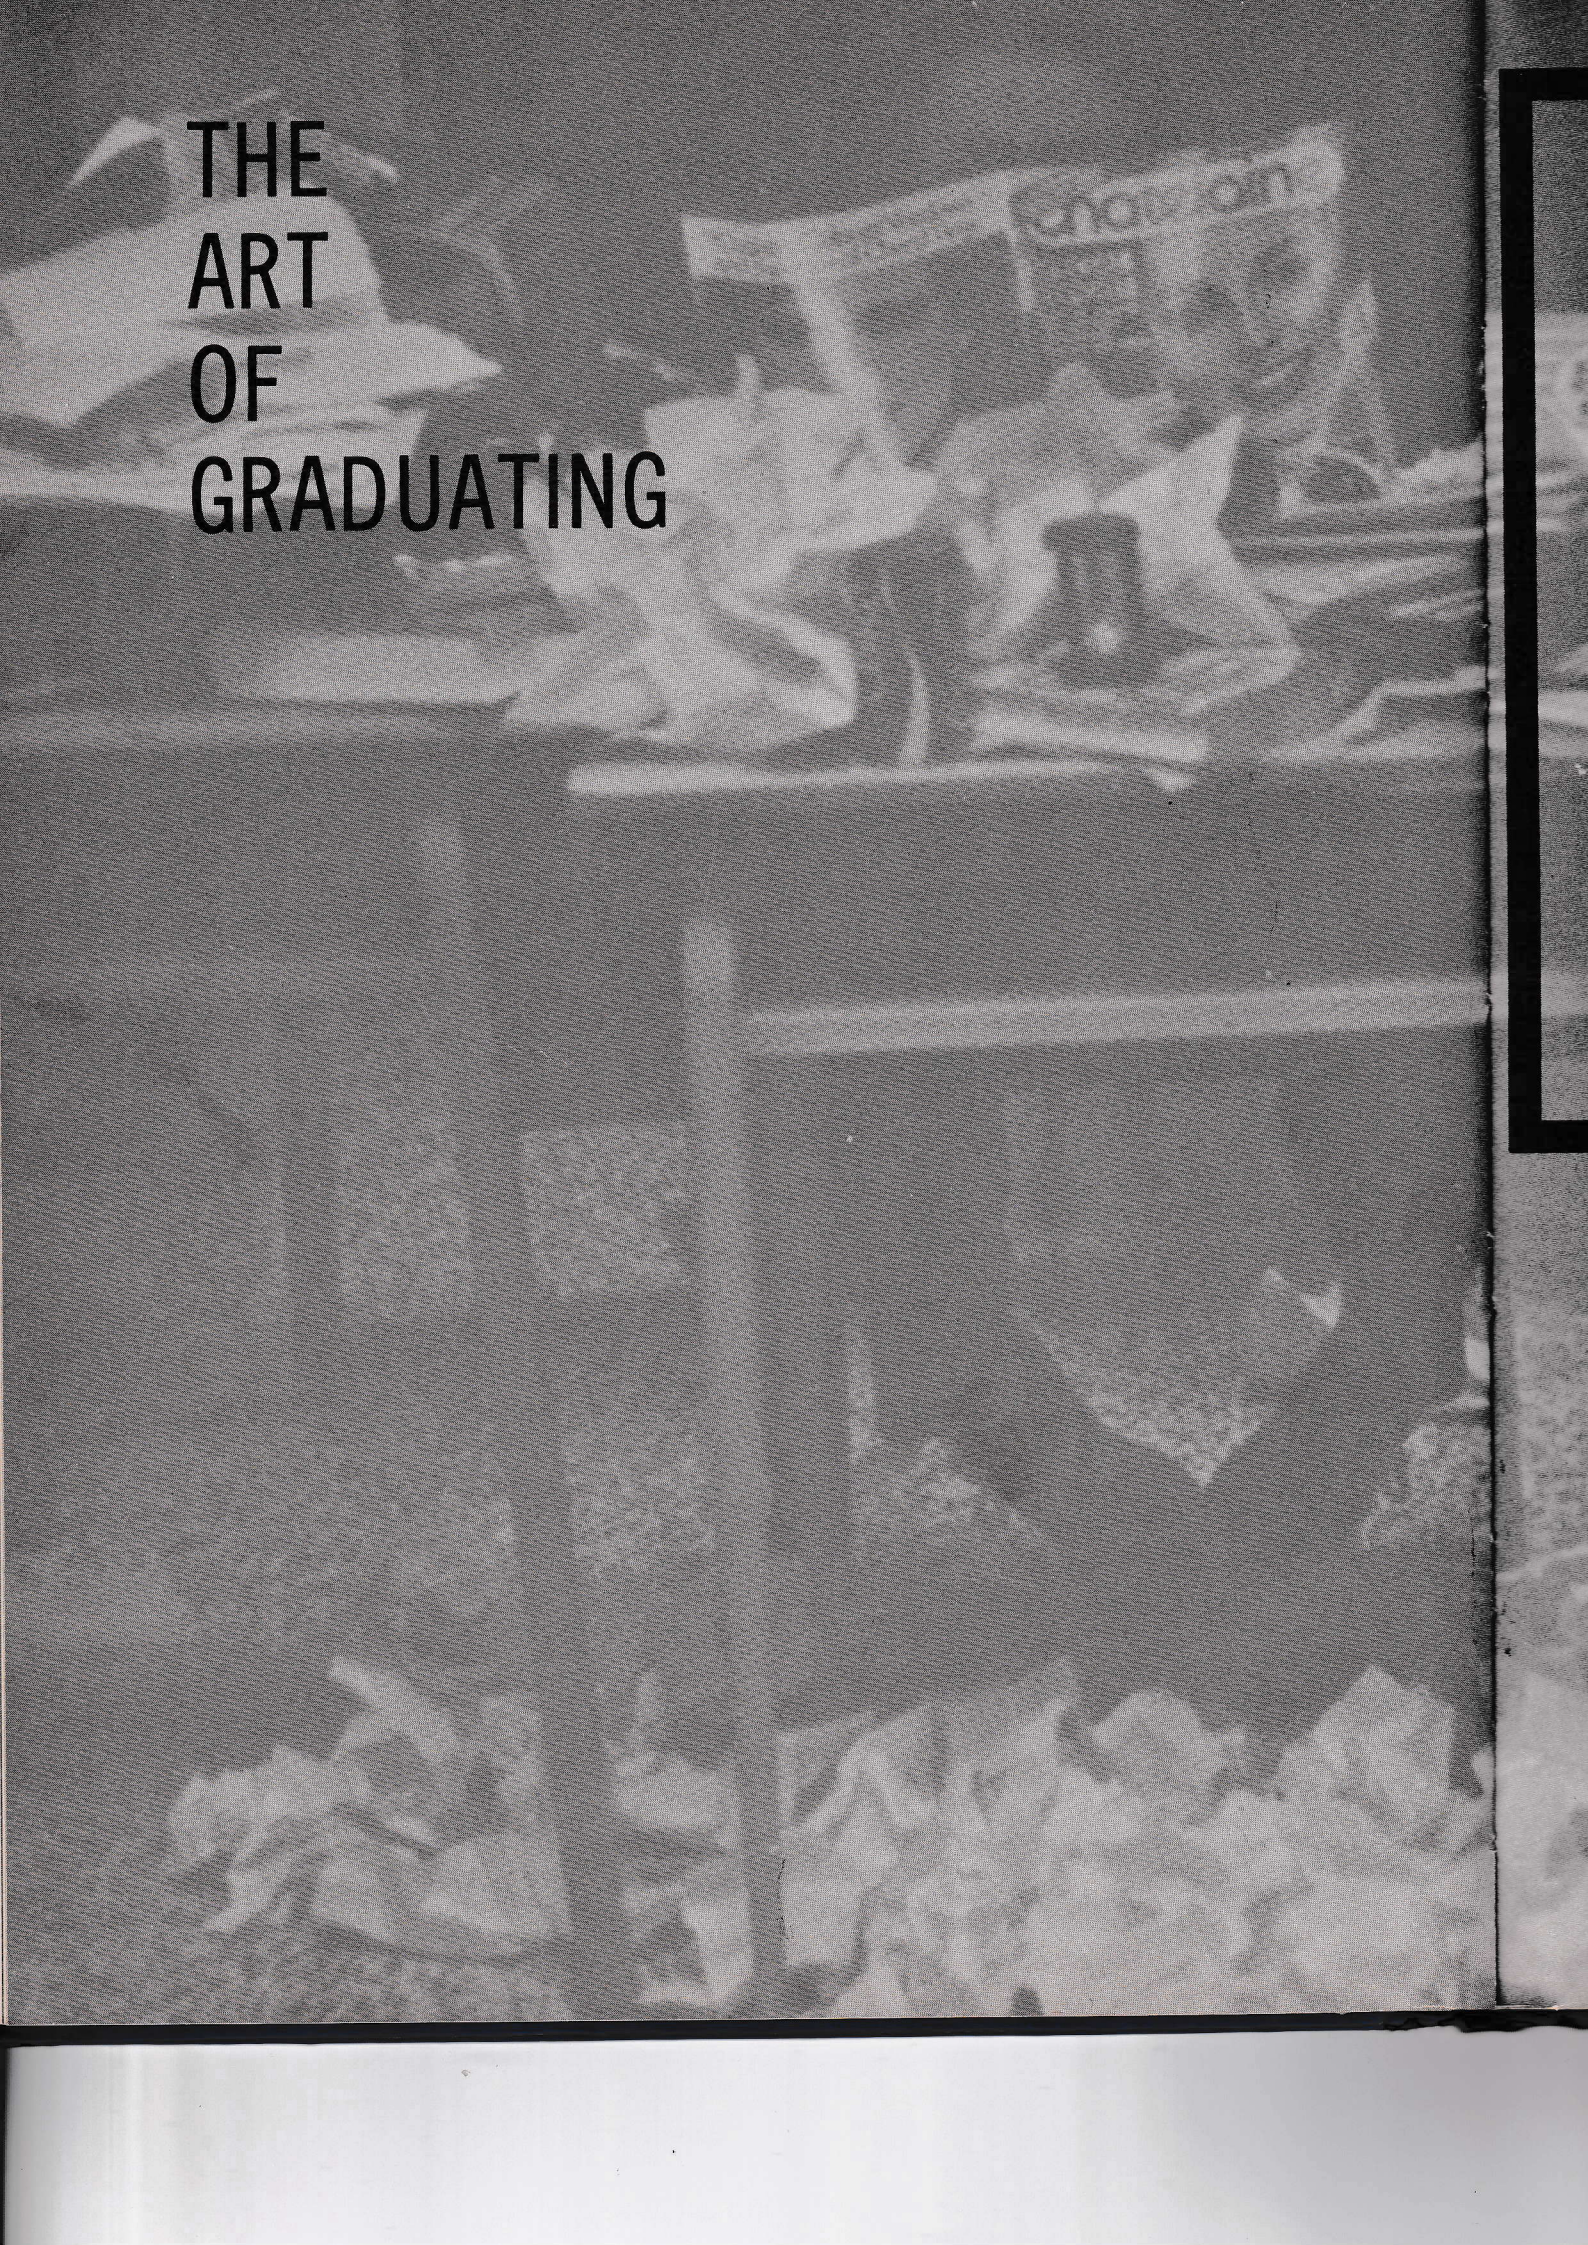

The yellow lamplight burns a hazy glow,
Shrouded by flakes of gently falling snow,
That settles on the ground, wisping in vortices of wind,
'Till cresting up, then falling in eddies; its end.

The cold gnaws through to the bones of the few,
Who venture out into this indigo hew,
Bent double in the gusts of white froth,
That bites and chews at their feeble cloth.

THE ART OF GRADUATING

Step right up folks onto the platform of life, where the name of the game is . . . The name of the game can be anything: happiness, wealth or fame. It depends on your personal goals in life. For many grade 12's and 13's, confined to the narrow, limited world of school, the thing that matters is marks.

Marks show the universities, your parents and you the results of your efforts at school. They may not be totally accurate - everyone knows that one teachers 65 is anothers 90 - but they are the only judgement of your abilities, so they have to be fought for.

An average of at least 60% is needed to apply for post-secondary school education in Ontario. If scholarships and grants are on your mind, the requirements become somewhat steeper.

For a few lucky people, a 90% average comes easily. The rest of us just have to work at it. That means studying.

Studying may involve comprehensive learning, or at the other end of the spectrum - cramming the material into your eyes, ears and mouth, and throwing it up again the next day for the test. Sometimes if you are really unlucky, you forget everything. It is as if it's been digested and lost forever. Then it's bye-bye honours.

The grades required for the honour diploma become sort of an enormous shining light at the end of the tunnel (or at the bottom of the dirt pile - whatever the case may be). It's the big 80. Eighty percent. An excuse for a nervous breakdown when you end up with 79.4.

Studying to achieve the grades is usually dull and tiring. Often the main topic subdivides infinitely. It becomes a tunnel that branches off. You keep getting farther and farther away from where you started. Eventually you become totally lost, not even remembering why you started. That's the time to retire to Gilligans Island, or to stare at an avocado vacantly and ponder the meaning of it all.

Some other symptoms that relate to this condition may include:

CHRONIC PROCRASTINATION cor. 1 - obsessive room cleaning when accustomed to living in squalor. cor. 2 - becoming mother's little helper when normally you don't lift a finger. cor. 3 - have an irrational desire to watch daytime T.V. - VICIOUS CYCLE not studying - guilt - effort - studying - wish you weren't studying. These symptoms occur in many variations, depending on the student. Most people have a pattern for completing assignments. Four of the most common styles have been observed. Case Studies: CLASS: UPTIGHT "Well, the teacher assigned the history paper today, and I have 9 weeks to do it. If I rush home right after school and work solidly through the weekend and get up every morning at 6 a.m. for the next 2 weeks, I can be finished with 7 weeks left to write my bibliography." CLASS: AVERAGE "Well, the teacher assigned this 2000 word essay a month and a half ago. I don't need my alarm clock anymore because the librarian phones me every morning to remind me to return my 4 week overdue books. It's now Wednesday night and my essay is due Monday. That leaves me 2 days to panic, and the weekend to put the most impressive book into my own words. I might as well forget about proof reading." CLASS: DISORGANIZED "Well, I have two 2000 word essays due and a biology test on Monday (it's Friday night). I can, therefore, watch T.V. tonight, sleep all day Saturday, start working Sunday afternoon, stay up all night, then write the bibliography first period Monday instead of going to class." CLASS: LOST CAUSE "Well, my 2000 word essay was due yesterday. I guess I'll drop the course."

You all night students who are always five minutes late sure aren't alone. The midnight grind is a result of that Old High School saying, "Marks aren't the main thing, they're the only thing."

Michelle Lang

After exams students and staff celebrated the end of first semester Weston style on Outdoor Education Day. Before the Christmas holidays the Students Council and the secretarial staff arranged the selling of lottery tickets to raise the money needed to fund the day.

After the six day exam period teachers and students slackened the pace by spending time together outside the classroom and on the slopes, trails, courts, rinks or allies. All activities took place in southern Ontario, some as far north as Collingwood.

The teachers hosted a hearty pancake breakfast in the cafeteria which started at six o'clock a.m. - about an hour and a half before sunrise. Staff members divided their energies, some taking charge of frying and flipping the pancakes while others served.

The ski trips to Blue Mountain and Mt. St. Louis were by far the most popular activities of the day. About 14 busloads of skiers were heading north on highway 400 by 7:15 a.m.

Upon arrival at the various ski areas, students were met with clear blue sunny skies, and soft powder snow with a few icy patches here and there. Those who required rental equipment anxiously bundled into the chalet to get their skis, poles and boots. For some this was a first time opportunity.

Once out of the chalet skiers skated, shuffled and fumbled their ways to one of the tows. Those choosing the chairlift got to watch the varied ski performances of friends and teachers. The telltale sign of the novice were the short skis, the snow-covered rearends and timid descent down the hill. Those with a little more experience and guts were to be seen whooshing around other skiers. Every slope had its daredevil who would rocket down the hill to sometimes land in a tangled heap at the bottom.

Once at the end of the lift, safety bars were raised and skiers went down the tow ramp to the crest of the hill. The view from the top of Mt. St. Louis was magnificent. All you could see were miles upon miles of snow covered fields and rolling hills.

Everyone began to feel hunger pangs around 11 o'clock and went into the chalet to warm themselves and grab a bite to eat. Friends were seen in groups recounting the mornings episodes of wiping out, falling off the tow or losing skis. Most skiers, anxious to get back out on the hills didn't linger long over lunch.

The sky had clouded over and it had become cooler but it didn't daunt many from heading back up the tows. The afternoon went quickly and it wasn't long before the teachers were ushering the students back to the buses.

Everyone got on the buses wind burned and rosy cheeked - sometimes not just a result of the weather. The ride home was quiet. Some dozed while others talked quietly with friends or just took in the view of the countryside.

On returning to the school the teachers once again rustled up some grub. Hot chocolate, pop and donuts were available for everyone. Groups of people from all the various outings trickled into the cafe towards the end of the afternoon. After relaxing for a while everyone headed home to either collapse or get ready for the dance.

Around 6:30 a crowd was gathering outside the south cafeteria doors. The doors opened and the dance floor was packed by 7:30. Cheerleaders sold pop while teachers and the Dance Committee patrolled the dance. The DJ played a variety of music from the ever popular "Stairway to Heaven" to a 1940 jazz tune "In the Mood." Non-Dancers sat at tables around the dance floor entertained by the both weird and wonderful dancing styles. Almost everyone was inclined to grab a dance partner for the mellower songs. There were so many people and so much energy in our cafe that all the windows steamed up.

At 10:00 the lights were turned up and everyone herded out of the cafe to battle for their coats. Some went home all ready to sink into sleep while others carried on the fun into the late hours of the night. What a way to hail in the new semester!

OUTDOOR EDUCATION? CELEBRATION WESTON STYLE

The curtains opened to present Weston's very first Melodrama! "The Curse of an Aching Heart or Trapped in a Spider's Web," was a hilarious tale of a love-triangle and unpaid rent. The audience was kept in stitches as Lucius Goodenough and Windemere Hightower battled for the heart of the lovely Melody Lane.

That evil Hightower was also scheming to take over the None-Such Ranch, home of the quaint but pleasant Hiram and Sarah Abernathy, their charming daughter Aurelia, and the trouble-forecasting Indian, Redwing. The whole tangled tale took place there at the Ranch.

But, alas, shortly after Windemere Hightower and his girlie Muriel Atkins stole the Abernathy's rent, Goodenough, accused of the crime by the swanky sheriff, Battle Axe Annie, nabs him. Aloysius, the long-lost son of the Abernathy's comes home and pays off the ranch's mortgage.

In the end, Lusius gets Melody, Aloysius and Melody, separated for years, find out they are father and daughter, Battle Axe Annie solves her first case, Hightower is put away where he belongs, Nellie Blyth, the town gossip has a juicy story to tell and Hiram, Sarah, Aurelia and Redwing live happily ever after.

You're changing fast and so is the world you live in. One year into the 80's and we've already been shown pictures the like of which man has never seen before, beamed back from Saturn — about 800,000,000 miles away! There's more to come, and you'll be a part of it all. Good luck as you step into the future!

ASBESTOS-CIDE

Havoc and turmoil struck Weston! Paint was scraped off walls, whole sections of ceiling were destroyed, mysterious noises emerged from sealed off areas and hundreds of students were pushed out into the cold.

With the recent information concerning asbestos-related diseases, the York Board of Education decided to take on the task of removing the asbestos from Weston Collegiate. Throughout the year parts of the school were sealed off, so that workmen could scrape and chip away the asbestos and replace it with mineral wool. The obstructing walls turned the school into a maze, through which bewildered students and confused teachers had to find their rearranged classes and overstuffed lockers. Probably the worst inconvenience was the scheduled classes at Weston Memorial, a quick, cold, five minutes away. That "lovely brisk walk" was followed by classes spent in undersized desks and drinks taken from knee-high water fountains.

The entire cost of this one year inconvenience had doubled the original six-figure estimate by midwinter, and was not expected to stop its upward climb - a fortune spent in the prevention of cancer.

Getting in Trouble

Getting in trouble at Weston is the same as getting in trouble anywhere - it's no fun. Anticipation of thumbscrews and the rack greet many a grade 9 when their name is called to the office numerous times during the day. With shuffling feet they drag themselves down to face the music.

Whether it's petty theft, vandalism, smoking in the washroom or skipping, a punishment lays in waiting to fit the crime. In the latter case, computer action may be taken. Most of us are familiar with those bilingual personal addresses informing us of our delinquencies, valid or otherwise. Persistence in such slothery may result in a failure to receive the credit unless a medical certificate or other proof that you've been putting in your 120 hours is given. Tsk, Tsk.

Weston's attendance system is nearly foolproof. Only human error with the dots can erase your unrequired holiday, or multiply it by several times.

Detentions are the common form of punishment for unwarranted absences or lates. Guilty parties can often be seen paying their dues on the bench in the office. In the words of Dr. Fraser, "Time that is lost is time that should be made up." Serving time at Weston in one way or another, is something that no one enjoys, but most of us sample anyway.

Halloween Dance

One of this year's first main events was the Hallowe'en Dance. Organized and presented by the Rugby Club, it was a big hit.

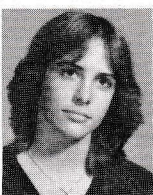

People bumped and jiggled in costumes that were imaginative and amusing. Students came as pencils, pregnant girl guides, cowboys, bug-eyed monsters, draculas, warriors, spacemen, and other strange creatures of the night.

The music was handled by a disc jockey who played all different types of records (he tried to please everyone).

The dance was so popular that people who had been waiting in the cold weren't able to get into the dance because of the large turn-out. Even those who had worked all day on their costumes were just out of luck.

Unfortunately, for people like Lorne Cunliffe, it was a thumbs-down night. But, for most, it was a fantastic dance and an enjoyable evening.

Publishing the Yearbook in any given year is a major task. Successfully publishing one under the disruption of an asbestos removal program and the unfortunate and unavoidable absence of the staff advisor, is a monumental task. My congratulations to:

for overcoming these difficulties.

This also gives me the opportunity of expressing my appreciation to all students and all staff for the mature manner in which they have coped with the year long problems associated with the asbestos removal.

The appearance of a yearbook room is deceptive. Beneath all of those empty boxes and scattered pages is a ton of work. Some of this is obvious - taking pictures, nagging people and raising money.

This year the book is 136 pages long. Some of these pages are ads. Each one had to be sold and collected.

Some of these are articles. They had to be written and typed.

All 1700 student photos had to be sorted alphabetically. Each picture also needed a correctly spelled corresponding name. If the person was graduating, they usually had a writeup that had to be typed. Luckily, all of the individual pictures were taken for us.

All of the other pictures we had to take. If they were candid shots then we just had to be at the right place at the right time. Team, club and staff pictures had to be arranged. All of these pictures had to be processed. One person did all of it.

When pictures and copy had been assembled, a detailed design of the page had to be made. The final copies of the pages were sent in 5 major portions. This year 2 of these deadlines were late. One time the pictures were accidentally ruined so they had to be done again. The other time 1/4 of the grad pictures were lost in the mail. We had to wait for the company to send us a new set.

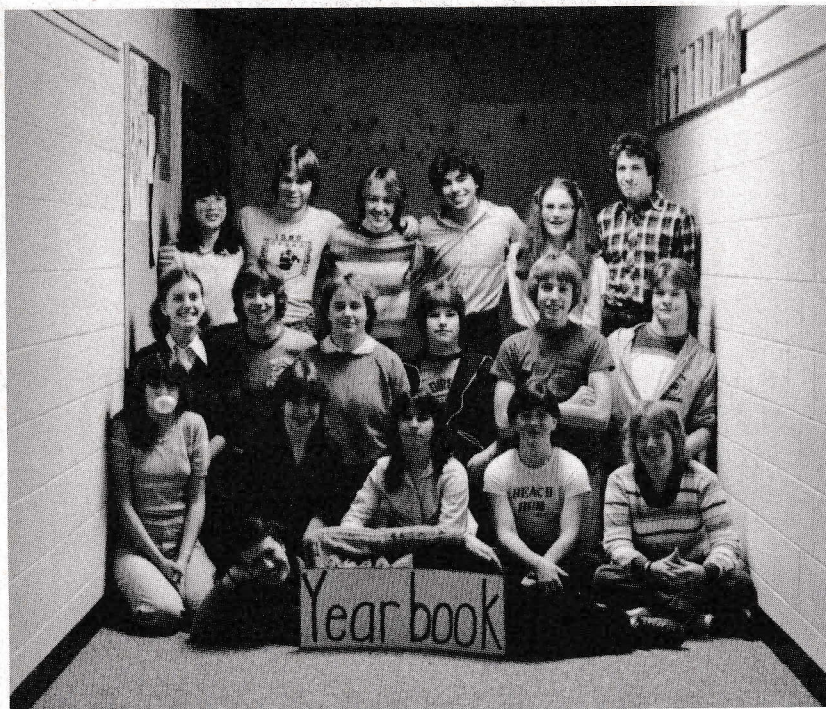

Because of the asbestos we had to move 3 times.

Some days we stayed at school until 6 o'clock. Usually we didn't.

A lot of our work required a steady stream of gossip to keep us on our toes. Taking pictures and collecting info gave us an excuse to talk to many very interesting people.

But the best part was knowing that this book which 800 people will read is the direct result of our efforts.

We enjoyed it. We hope you will too.

In exhibition play the team won the Central Commerce tournament and played in championship finals in Aurora and at Boylen. Overall the team had a 27 win 10 loss season and things look even brighter for next year's Junior Ironmen.

Stats and Facts

The 1979-80 year brought forth great athletic success at Weston. To keep in stride with the Jr. and Sr. Football teams, the Jr. Hockey, Swim and Wrestling teams, the Weston Rugby Club had no choice but to win its third consecutive York Championship.

The 1980 team was made up of a great group of guys, who practiced diligently and were supportive of each other on and off the field.

It was the year Weston fielded two teams. Both proved to be successful. The junior team had an undefeated season and made a good showing in the Weston Invitational Tournament. The senior team won the tournament and was undefeated in league play.

At the the seasons end Weston lost to Wexford in the TDIAA finals.

	JR. DIVISION TDIAA CHAMPIONS

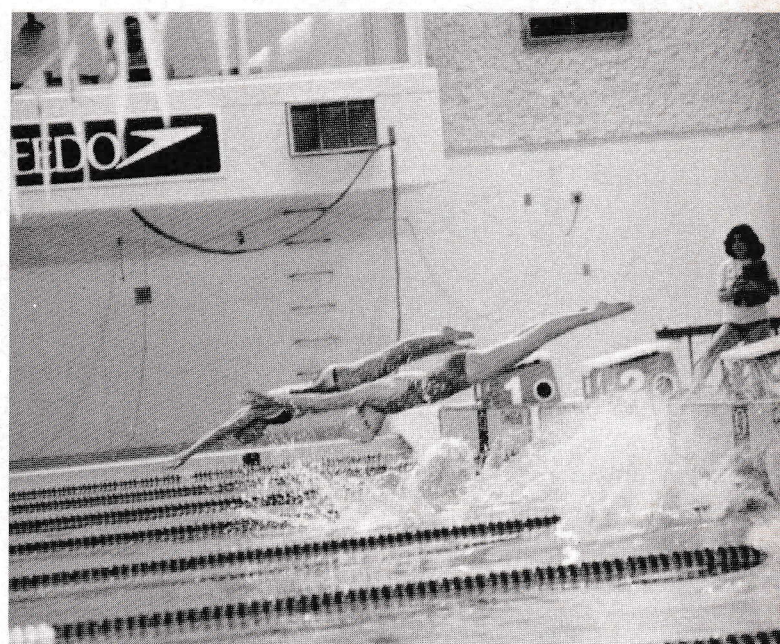

One hundred and seven students tried out for the team in November, but the turnout among grade 9'ers was very low. Those newcomers who did make the team gave it a good effort, and combined with the team gave it a good effort, and combined with the very strong junior and senior teams, enabled us to go the season undefeated. This was the 4th time in six seasons that we went undefeated!

At the York and TDIAA championships, many Weston swimmers excelled and deserve mention: Luari Britton, Krista Davies, Cindy Durnall, Lisa Martin, Rob McLean, Kevin Stinson, Keith Patching, Forbes Brown, Bruce Scott, Tim Triantopoulos, and Randy Noah. In addition, Lisa and Keith were chosen as our outstanding swimmers of the year. Next year the TDIAA league is being restructured, and with it will come several changes in York swimming which will also necessitate making changes with the Weston swim team.

This year Weston initiated a series of downhill ski races for both boys and girls. Races were held at various ski resorts and in each of the races points were awarded based on the skiers times for the races. Six races were held with a boys and girls champion to be declared. Over 30 skiers competed in our championship circuit. Enos Rosolen and Nancy Carroll were probably the most consistent skiers. Next season we expect to expand the series of races with more skiers competing in this most exciting and challenging sport.

Stats and Facts

The 1980-81 season proved to be another successful one for the Wrestling Team. Hard work and a longer exhibition season were the keys to our success. This year we ranked higher than ever before on the tournament circuit. One of the seasons highlights was the team victory at the De LaSalle Tournament.

Through team effort and dedication we were able to capture the York League Trophy as well as the York Championship for the second time in a row. This also meant we were allowed to send 15 athletes to represent the borough in the TDIAA finals.

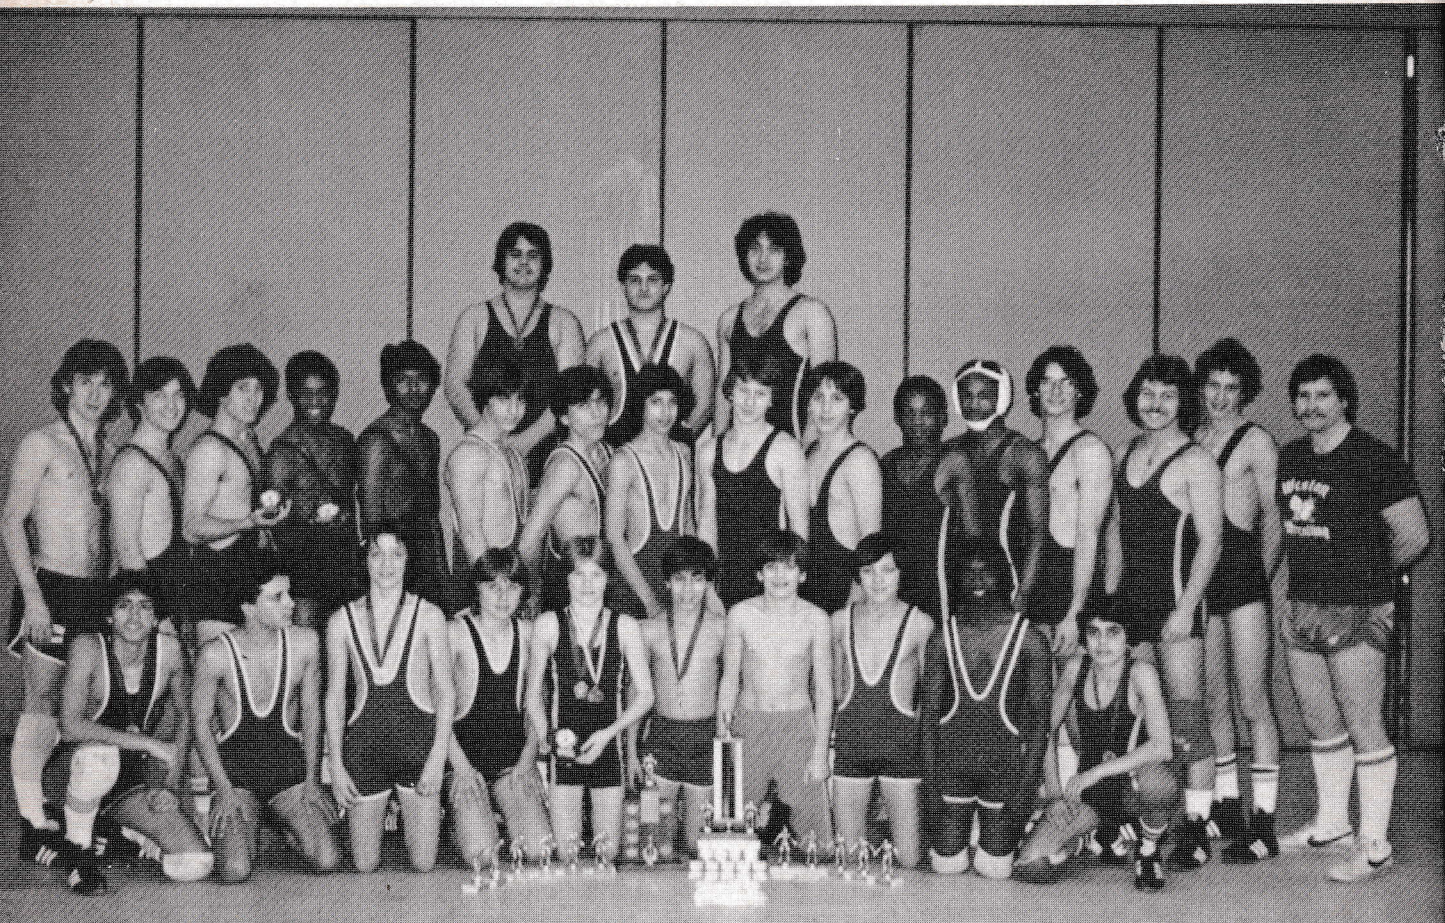

I would like to sum up the season by saying that the teams overall attitude and desire made this years team a true pleasure to coach.

Congratulations for the best season ever.

Coach Williams

TRIBUTE TO A TEACHER

This is a very special tribute to a very special person.

She goes by the name Peggy. Although this is not her real name, it suits her. She is kind and warm, a bright, cheery person, too.

Peggy is a teacher at Weston. But to call her our teacher is an understatement. She cares not only about our marks, but she cares about us. We are not just students or numbers in a book, we are people and together we form a kind of classroom family. Thanks to our teacher, we all have a sense of belonging, not only in class but in everything we do.

To say that we've liked her all along would be lying. At the beginning of the semester, we all disliked her a little, to say the least. We started condemning ourselves for taking the course and getting her for our teacher. We did, however, give her a chance to prove our ideas wrong, and it's fair now to say we really were wrong, we misjudged her terribly. She turned out great, not only as a teacher, but as a person. We all agree the course wouldn't be the same without her. She's understanding, gentle, witty, caring, cute as a bug's ear and just somebody special. Very special. She has affected all of our lives, which for the most part, turned out for the better. She's hit home with all of us and she's won each and all of our hearts.

For closing, we'd like to say, this is for you Margaret (Peggy) Talacko, from your Family Studies 55 class. We hope you have many FS55 classes, but we all wish that we will be remembered and held near and dear to your heart, since we were the first.
